Now housing a restaurant, these two town houses of mid-19th century vintage have been amply decorated with a variety of 1960s picturesque commercial architectural details, and altered to accommodate the needs of a thriving commercial establishment. Number thirteen, a three story, four bay wide brick structure retains original flat stome sills and lintels at each of the eight remaining window openings, and a relatively plain wooden cornice, with a row of modillions and end brackets. Number Fifteen is a three bay wide, two story brick structure which also retains flat stome sills and lintels at each of the three remaining window openings. The roffline is adorned with a similar simple cornice, with a row of modillions of smaller scale, and is supported on a pair of consoles at either end.
